“ "I'll tell you what, buddy..."

What can anyone say about our Uncle Ted? From my earliest memories, I remember Uncle Teddy as connecting with us kids more than any other adult I recall. Trips to White Cloud always featured a refrigerator full of soda for us and memorable ways to keep us entertained: From riding on his old red tractor, to his "Civil War" era cannon which, with the help of M80s, launched beer can projectiles into the next county.

As a young adult, I began to appreciate his unparalleled craftsmanship and his utter intolerance for any work less than perfect. To this day, when I'm completing a house project, his workmanship and impeccable standards come to mind...as do my dad's...and my brother, Tim's -- who, with our cousins, were blessed with the gift of looking after Ted (and Aunt Esther) throughout the later years of his life.

Uncle Teddy: If heaven needs any "work" done, God now has the best craftsman to finish it.

God bless you, buddy.
