“ This photo of Alan, with me (Sandra) and spouse TJ, was taken on March 5, 2017 at the Michigan Local History Conference in Sterling Heights where Alan "made my day." Tried, unsuccessfully, to add to previous memory with details.

“ Alan Naldrett, a local historian and author of the recently published "Lost Car Companies of Detroit" -- Bumps in the Road From Hudson to Studebaker -- seemed overjoyed to meet a real live Studebaker. It didn't even matter that this 8th generation female descendant of our immigrant ancestor(Clement) is only a 2nd cousin, 4X removed, from the five South Bend Studebaker brothers of automotive renown. Alan easily "made my day" on the last day of the Michigan Local History Conference in 2017. Of course I bought a copy of his latest book and continue to treasure my autographed copy. Way too young to leave us, but Alan accomplished much in his brief 67 years. Virtual hugs to the family. S. A. Studebaker, MSLS

“ I became friends with Alan while living on the 8th floor of N. Hubbard Hall at MSU in '71-'72. We reconnected several years ago on social media. I am terribly saddened and have many prayers for him and his family. The attached photo appeared in the MSU newspaper and was taken at Alan's Karma used record shop at the MSU Student Services bldg. in May of 1974. Alan can be seen on the phone in the background just below my chin.
