“ Sad to hear of Barbs passing. She and I attended Lincoln elementary together in Birmingham, Michigan. She and her family lived on Benneville St and I lived not far from her on Edgewood... we didn't spend time together as my family moved to a new house during elementary but we did go to same high school and I knew her husband Ward. We learned of each other about a year or so ago on Zoom group chat and enjoyed monthly check-ins with mutual friends. She was so appreciative of her families help with her computer and mail as her eyesight deteriorated. She will be missed on our Zoom group... my love to her family.

“ Barbara was my first cousin. Her father, Olney Lee Parker, was my father's older brother. Because Barbara was 13 years older than me & lived in a different community, we were not close growing up. However, we reconnected as senior citizens & enjoyed sharing family stories & discussing genealogy. She was a wonderful person with many good qualities. I will truly miss her. “If you grew up in a neighborhood like mine—right in the heart of downtown Rochester—you know what it was like to have houses packed closely together and kids everywhere. When I was five years old, our street was full of children between the ages of 4 and 10, which meant endless playmates and more importantly, a whole community of parents who looked out for you like their own.

One of those families was the Tollziens. If you were standing in front of my childhood home, the Tollziens lived right next door to the left. In 1968, Mrs. Tollzien sent her young daughter next door to see if there were any little girls to play with—and that’s how Debbie found me. We were only six months apart in age and became instant best friends. It’s now 2025, and after 57 years, we still are.

Because Debbie and I spent so much time together, her mom naturally became one of my “second moms.” Mrs. Tollzien was a beautiful person—inside and out. I always felt comfortable with her, and I truly cherished every moment we shared over the years. I loved her deeply, like a mom, and she meant the world to me.

Hearing of her declining health was heartbreaking, and when I received the news of her passing, I was heartbroken. But I am so grateful that just a few months ago, I had the chance to sit and talk with her—just like we had done for decades.

Mrs. Tollzien, you will always hold a special, irreplaceable place in my heart. You taught me so much throughout my life. You patiently answered the questions Debbie and I asked as curious little girls, watched us play dress-up in those beautiful dresses, and saw us grow into young women. You were there every step of the way.

Though you had one daughter by birth, you made me feel like I was a daughter too. Thank you for that gift. Rest in peace, my beautiful second mom. I will miss your gorgeous smile and your infectious laugh—and I will always, always love you.

*With love,
Claire*
