“ Dad,

You are and awesome man and sorely missed. You do know that all those times when Debbie and I came to your house when you were sick and I made funny comments, I meant those to be funny. I hope you know that. You know I loved you so very much, you WERE my father and I loved you as much as I loved my own father who passed. I wanted you to remember me how I was in life, and I the same about you. If I did not joke or make light of the room and situation....you would know something was wrong and not right and that would even confuse you more. I did not want that. You did not need to be more confused, you needed someone to remind you WHO YOU WERE and where you came from. This awful disease was robbing you of these memories and I wanted to limit that as much as possible. I did not want you to feel lost and confused, due to some ugly disease. I wanted you to feel normalcy and comfort and more important FAMILY...even if it meant dealing with your goofy son-in-law. I love you Dad and I miss you terribly. But I find comfort knowing that you are with Jesus Christ with no more pain and confusion. I find comfort knowing that I will get to see you again as God promised me this. More important of all...I find comfort knowing you are no longer confused and scared, but happy and smiling looking down on us and protecting us and happy knowing we will all see each other again on that last day. It will be like Christmas ...with you in charge of the gifts...and on this day you can go "first" instead of the usual last. Love you. Doug
