“ Dennis was a dear friend of mine from our days as salesmen at Somerset Mall. One day, Dennis called me up and asked for a job reference for a quite different sort of job, and I was more than happy to oblige. The following is what I wrote:

"To whom it may concern:

This is a letter of general reference for Mr. Dennis Motz, who I have known as a work associate and personal acquaintance since November, 2000.

I first met Mr. Motz when I hired in at a company for which he was working at the time. Mr. Motz assumed the unspoken role of mentor to me, teaching me the ins-and-outs of the business. He taught me a variety of things ranging from techniques for servicing customers to the finer points of learning a new computer operating system with all of its quirks. I also learned a fair amount about good work habits from Mr. Motz's example.

I often and affectionately tell others that "Dennis taught me everything that I know about the business." Mr. Motz did all of this out of thoughtful concern for me, never receiving anything corporately in return for these efforts. Over the next couple years of our working together, I came to realize that Mr. Motz effectually trained virtually all of the new hires, managers included, as he had graciously done for me.

I mention all of this to give you a snapshot of the type of quiet, yet helpful person Mr. Motz has proven time and time again to be. I feel privileged to be called upon to give this letter of reference for him, and would be happy to offer any other support that I can in the future.

Sincerely,

Robert Saad"

Now that Dennis has passed away, I am deeply saddened at the loss of a friend that I respected and cherished so much. I pray that Dennis will now enjoy the grace of the Lord in eternity.

I offer my deepest sympathies to Dennis's family and friends.

God's blessings to you,

Bob Saad
