“ A great man with a heart of gold. Always there with a helping hand and willing to go the extra mile. I wish things would have gone better for him the past 5-6 years were a struggle with his business but he never gave up and always had a positive attitude. That's what I take away from knowing Jim. He never let life beat him down. He knew relationships were what mattered most in life. Even in the toughest of times you could genuinely tell he cared more about helping others than whatever else was going on. We will miss you greatly Jim, RIP brother.
