“ Dorothy,

You were one of my mother's (Theresa [Fritz] Michaels) oldest and dearest friends. Over the many decades, our family got to know your family very well. Especially after the passing of your husband, Buff, and my own father, James (only 3&1/2 years ago), Mother truly treasured those few friends that she knew from her youth. She cherished the time spent talking to you, at least over the phone. The conversations always brought great joy to her. She became quite concerned about your wellbeing, earlier this year, when she was unable to get in touch with you, despite multiple attempts. Given the fact that you were both if a similar age, she naturally assumed you had come into some physical distress and had been hospitalized. Some time over the night of February 11-12th, My mother suffered a massive stroke. With myself at her bedside, she quietly passed away 2&1/2 days later. Last Thursday, while at her house, I received a phone call from your daughter, Jeanne, who advised me of your fall and eventual transfer to hospice care. I have just now learned of your passing. To your family, I can only say that I understand just how sad you all are, as I have and am going through my own grieving process. As I said to my mother at the end of her final service, until we meet again: Farewell, Farewell, Farewell
