Dorothy's family grieves her loss but takes comfort in knowing that she is together again with her husband (George), mother and father and her many sisters and brothers.

“ It was so nice meeting up again with Aunt Dorothy and enjoyed the time spent listening to her stories of working and how she met Uncle George. A funny story was her and I sitting in the back seat chatting away when she asked Cheryl who I was cause she didn't remember me. She was lucky to have had her son and Cheryl take care of her for many years, and to enjoy their way of life at the water and trips to Florida. May you rest in peace and now knowing what you forgot.
