“ When we were growing up and I would stop at your house, your mom would always be smiling. Such a joyful lady is your mom, Susan. Will pray that the Lord will sustain you and your family at this time and carry you through this next year, your dad too. I lost my mom to cancer in 2007 and only after that understood how she handled the loss of her mom. When she couldn't pick up the phone and call her, ask her about a recipe or when to throw out the chicken-leftoversin-the-frig, she would just talk out loud to her. I don't believe that my grandma Rice could hear her. I believe that my mom was reminiscing and loving the woman who cared for her all her life. I now understand this. Happens to me when I'm in my garden or writing a letter, loves of my mom that are now part of my life as well. So if you need to, I'd say talk to her when it fits for you. Her love will meet you there. Take care lady, Julie##imported-begin##Julie Horney (formerly Lech)##imported-end##
