“ Grandma, I still can't believe that you are gone. It feels surreal to write these words, and yet I know you are now at peace in the loving arms of our Savior. I will cherish every memory I have of you. Our Christmas shopping trips, listening to jazz music in your car, sharing a Vernors, and watching HGTV. Those moments are gifts I will hold in my heart forever.

I won't forget you meeting Maverick and using all your strength to give him kisses.

You were such a wonderful Grandma to me. I take comfort in knowing God gives you healing, clarity, and perfect peace in heaven.

Though I will miss you, I know this goodbye is not forever. One day we will be reunited, and I will get to see you whole again.

Until then, I will keep you close in my heart, grateful for the love, laughter, and memories we shared. I love you, Grandma, and I look forward to the day we meet again in heaven. □

“ Michelle, Mitch, Paul and families-

There are never the right words when families lose someone so important. As cousins, we will cling to the memories we made and the stories we were able to share. Without a doubt, Liz cared deeply about her family, and that love will be there, always.

May her memory be a blessing to us all.

“ Although we shared a limited amount of time in our adult lives together due to geographical locations you were always top of mind and in my heart. You were blessed with beautiful children, grandchildren and great grandchildren for which I am so thankful. I cherished the opportunity we had when we were together and especially was overjoyed to have you visit Maui with family and friends. That visit to paradise was just a prelude to the paradise the Lord has waiting for you in His kingdom. May you forever have eternal peace.
