Thank you for providing this video service for the funeral of my cousin George E. Montie. I received news of George's passing on Sunday evening in Virginia, and was unable to travel to Michigan for the 11:00 AM service on Monday morning. This real-time video of the service truly was a worthy substitute. Well done. Michael E. Montie

“ Like my brother Tom, my cousin George was the second son in his family. He was born twelve days after Tom and, like Tom, was a gentle, kind, and reliable boy who grew to be an equally gentle, kind and reliable man. George and his older brother Don shared a bedroom in their house while they grew up. And when our family visited them on Sunday afternoons, as families did in those days, my brothers Tom and John and myself loved spending large amounts off time with George and Don in their bedroom because they had what we believed to be probably the world's largest trove of Dell comic books! Kids grow close when they spend that kind of fun time together, and we always felt close to George and Don. After high school, George went to work for the Detroit water company, stayed with them for his entire working career, and was enormously respected by them for his ability to calmly and methodically help keep the company's books in order. George's fine sense of humor always kept the Montie clan happily chuckling, and he had an steadfastly mature ability to remind us all that we needed to keep in communication with one another. The last time I visited George was during a trip to Detroit last summer. We called his brother Don on the phone and had a fine visit reminiscing on the phone for the visit. George passed into eternity last week in the way he lived -- peacefully and without fuss. We all can feel confident that he and his parents Don and Agnes are together once again. Finally, we all should be grateful for the unfailing and continuous support that Mary and Jane provided George in his declining years. God bless you and keep you, George.

“ Allan and I were lucky to be able to visit with Uncle George these last 2 summers. He sang 'Hello Mutter, Hello Father' to us and always had a joke ready for us. Whenever I wrote to him, he always would write me back. I will miss him and am hoping Grandma is playing the organ for him, welcoming him into heaven. Love you Uncle George.

“ My brother George was always very kind...George was 8 years older than me. When I was 5 my mom told me it was time for bed and I told George I was afraid to go upstairs all by myself. He told me not to be afraid and he would go with me and stay with me until I wasn't afraid anymore...and he did...one of my most fond memories of George .
