“ Our friendship goes back more than half of a century; freshman year in high school. Since then, we formed a brotherly bond that has experienced some ups and downs, but, has endured simply because we cared for each other as true friends do. Our families shared many moments together: birthday parties, special days, and some vacation excursions. Our children basically, grew up together despite the fact that they were East-siders and we were West-siders. I know that George would do anything for me and he knew that I would be there for him, just for the asking. I'll miss George, but, I'm happy that he no longer has to cope with the devastating illness that has plagued him these last few years of his life. Rest in peace, my brother. Stan Turek
