“ I am glad to see this picture of Aunt Geri. She is beautiful. I just saw a picture of her with family on Facebook. I'm sorry she got sick soon after.

I am sorry, Lorraine. And Michelle. Your mother passing is the hardest loss I think.

I am glad that you and Joe and Brian and Phauwarine, and those (great) grandchildren all had her here for as long as you did. There was a lot of good time together and that is most important.

I have many memories of Aunt Geri, but the one I return to most often is that when she was put out with someone, she might say, "Hell on you!" That was such a confusing sentence when I was young. Later I found it to be a useful expression. Always repeated in my mind with Aunt Geri's voice.

We will talk about the other memories on Wednesday.
