“ My deepest sympathy for you loss. It had been a number of years since I had seen your wife/mother but for understandable reasons my most vivid memories of her involved me being smacked on my behind. The first time I was probably four or five years old and Dawn and Kelly (fitzsimmons) "dared" me to pull down my pants, which I did. They immediately ran to tell on me (Dawn you set me up on that one). The second time took place a few years later when Dawn and I got caught looking through that "magazine pile" in your basement. I don't mean to make light of your loss but I thought you may get at least a little chuckle from my most vivid memories of your wife/mother. Take care. “ Jim & Family,
I wish that I knew sooner, I would have come there in person for all of you. Since I , got the email late last night from Vince, all I could do was think about the fun times so long ago, especially up at Big Star Lake. That always seems to help instead of thinking sad things for me. I can still remember the first time Vince brought me to your house and 4 young kids. What a happy family. Jim you were such a loving husband and father. I could see that right off the bat. Stay close as a family. I am truly sorry for your loss. “ Well I've stared at this little White Square for 20 minutes wondering what to type.

Being as far away as we are, it's kind of silly to say the typical "Let us know if anybody needs anything", though the offer is wholeheartedly given. Though, if you plan on just 'popping in' because you're 'in the neighborhood' at least call first so we can throw the junk into the drawers and closets. :)

*"People do not die for us immediately, but remain bathed in a sort of aura of life which bears no relation to true immortality but through which they continue to occupy our thoughts in the same way as when they were alive. It is as though they were traveling abroad."
