“Lois Moscara and I were good friends for over fifty years. She was one of the kindest people I have ever known. She did not have a mean bone in her body. She loved her friends and family. She loved Jesus Christ and lived her Catholic religion. She saw good in everyone. I don't ever remember seeing her in a bad mood and when I would start crabbing about something petty, she would remind me to count my blessings. And I did.

Now, I don't mean to make Lois sound like a saint. She wouldn't like that. She was a lot of fun to be with. She and I spent a good deal of time together coloring each other's hair and had some good laughs over some of the colors we ended up with. We did girls' nights out together and we also partied heartily with our husbands and friends. Lois and I provided an adult voice for each other when we a bit batty from being with our kids all day every day.

Lois had a knack for decorating and although none of us had much money to spend on things in those days, hers was always the cutest house on the street. She could do so much with so little.

I am so happy to have had so many happy years with her. She loved her family above all. She lived a good life and is now at rest with her Savior.

“ *I have such fond fond memories of time spent with Lois and Jim. They introduced my Mother and Father.
