“ I have not known Martha for too long. She and her son Mike moved in about a year ago, but when I met her, I felt in my heart that she and I could become very close friends We talked quite a bit last summer and then of course on account of our ages (I just turned 88) we did not see each other during the coldest months. The thing I liked about Martha was she was such a happy person, even though I knew it was hard for her to breathe, she laughed a lot. Ginger Kistler
