“ Love’s arms were wrapped about the neck of Hope and Hope kissed Love and Love held her breath.

Love thought she would die when Hope was gone and Love mourned and sorrowed, sorrowed after Hope.

At long last Love sought out Memory, and together, they trod the same old paths where Love had walked with Hope.

And Memory filled the soul of Love with tears.

With love and tears,

Diana and Jerry

“ Aunt Mary-just thinking about you makes me smile. I have all good memories of fun times with you. I definitely remember the day you and Uncle Lawrence came home from California in that blue Plymouth. I will never forget how supportive you were throughout my life. I will miss, and never forget our fun and exciting shopping trips and I will never forget You. I will remember you always. Till we meet again, Love, Beverly.”
