“ Hey Sam, I'm so sorry. I can't believe you're gone now. I just found out today. I know you're up there doing what you do. I'm glad I had the honor of dating you back in 2016. I'm sorry things didn't end on quite a good foot. After all these years, I misjudged you. You were and still are the most sane person I have ever dated. I'm glad that I asked you to dance with me at camp and later on date me. The only regret I have is not talking to you that day.
Rest in peace, sunshine.

“ As a teacher, I worked with Sam at Akron-Fairgrove School. She was always so polite and friendly to the other students in my classroom. She would often give advice to others about learning from past mistakes and how to move on. She would call me from time to time to ask for advice and to just talk. She loved to talk! She was so excited about getting her diploma and how she wanted to celebrate with a small event. She will always be remembered for having such a sweet smile.
