“ I have so many wonderful memories along with the fun times I had with my dear sister. Since her loss whenever I see something interesting, different or really funny I want to call or text her, then realize she isn't there to share with ever again. The rides we took to neighborhoods where we once lived or just drove as far as we could to explore places we had never seen before. We loved to stop for lunch at interesting places and talk for hours about everything under the sun because both of us were interested in so many things from celebrity's, science, gardening, art along with books and on and on. Sue was a remarkable artist and inventive sculptor. After a long illness last year that she fought so damn hard to recover from and finally exited after gaining back her strength. It just isn't fair to lose her as she was finally getting back on track with her life. I will never be the same person without her. My mother had a great influence on us in a myriad of ways and now Sue will join her, my sweet Dad, our brother Paul and his wonderful wife Janet who we considered as being our sister from another mother and last but never least our Uncle Bill who played such a big part of our family. Sue is the greatest loss of my life as my sister and friend, never ever to be forgotten and loved.
